

BERGE BULK OFFERS CARBON NEUTRAL VOYAGES

Bulk shipping is the most fuel-efficient and carbon-efficient form of transport per metric tonne carried.

Despite this, shipping operations generate carbon emissions, and reducing these greenhouse gases and other air pollutants is a critical part of our environmental strategy.

Berge Bulk leads the bulk carrier industry in efficient ship design and efficient operations. We are committed to the development and deployment of commercially viable deep-sea zero-emission vessels by 2030.

We have made the ambitious commitment to become carbon neutral by 2025 at the latest, and we are one of the first bulk carriers to do so.

We are also investing in potential future energy solutions that will help the shipping industry become carbon neutral more quickly. And we are well ahead of the IMO's timeline for emissions reduction.

But we aspire to do more...

Starting in 2021, Berge Bulk is offering our clients an option for carbon neutral cargo delivery. Through this programme, we offset the carbon emissions of the voyage with high-grade carbon offsets.

To facilitate the programme, we have built a global portfolio of carbon offset projects. Our carbon offset portfolio includes projects that plant new trees and protect against deforestation, projects that produce renewable energy, and projects that work with low-income communities to reduce emissions in their way of life.

These projects are measured and monitored by the highest standards of leading international entities. All of our offset projects are certified to meet either the Gold Standard (GS), the Verified Carbon Standard (VCS), or the United Nations Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) accreditation.

Upon completion of the voyage, we will issue a certificate of retirement as evidence that the corresponding number of carbon credits have been retired to offset the voyage emissions.
